

Thelma Wells

For over thirty years Thelma Wells has been a voice of encouragement with a heart of love for people throughout the world. She blazed many trails for women and overcame many obstacles in her own life. Her travels have taken her to every state in America and over twenty-five foreign countries where she has written programs for corporations, governmental agencies, colleges, universities, religious institutions and served on missions trips to Third World Countries.

Thelma received a Master's of Divinity in Pastoral Counseling and later received an honorary Doctorate Degree from St. Thomas College and Theological Seminary. She was a core speaker for Women of Faith for twelve years and spoke to more than 400,000 women a year. Today she continues to teach in churches, at conferences and conventions throughout the US and abroad. But, in spite of her triumphs, she likes to be called, "Mama T."

Thelma on a Vision Trip to Africa, with World Vision.
