

Edgar Sandoval

Expert in strategic management, global poverty, innovation in the marketplace, and visionary leadership

As chief operating officer for World Vision U.S., Edgar is responsible for overseeing the implementation of the organization's operations and strategic plan. He came to World Vision in 2015 with a strong background in general management, operations, innovation, and brand-building.

Before joining World Vision, he spent 20 years in various leadership positions with Procter & Gamble, including Marketing Director for North America Fabric Care and Vice President of North America Marketing and Multicultural Business. In his last role, as Vice President and General Manager of Global Feminine Care, he made it his mission to advocate for girls and women around the world and help empower them to live life to their fullest potential.

Edgar holds a Bachelor of Science in engineering and a Bachelor of Arts in sociology from Rutgers University and an MBA from the Wharton School of Business at the University of Pennsylvania. He has served on the board of directors of the Association of National Advertisers (ANA) and the ANA Alliance for Family Entertainment (AFE) committee, and serves today on the board of directors for the Hispanic Scholarship Fund.

Born in Southern California but raised in Guatemala and Venezuela, Edgar lives with his wife, Leiza, and their four children near Seattle, Washington.

worldvision.org/speakers | speakers@worldvision.org

World Vision is a Christian humanitarian organization dedicated to working with children, families, and their communities worldwide to reach their full potential by tackling the causes of poverty and injustice. Visit worldvision.org for more information.