Dairy goat milk provides great protein to help children grow. The family can sell surplus milk, cheese, and yogurt at the market to earn money for medicines and other necessities. Plus, fertilizer from goats can increase the amount of vegetables grown in a family garden.

World Vision, 2009
The lambs will provide you with clothing, and the goats with the price of a field.” —Proverbs 27:26

Sheep give plenty of milk, cheese, and wool for children. It’s easy to see why sheep are among our most popular gifts. One healthy ewe gives highly nutritious milk for essential protein, vitamins, and minerals, plus plenty of wool to knit warm sweaters and blankets. It’s the perfect gift to celebrate the birth of Jesus—the Lamb of God.

A dairy cow can give a family 5,000 gallons of milk. In the 2011 True Spirit of Christmas tour, we met a mother named Irangani and her new cow, affectionately named Chooti. “When a family like us receives a cow…we are suddenly overjoyed and our sorrows disappear,” says Irangani. And with good reason. One cow gives up to 5,000 gallons—or 350,000 glasses—of milk in its lifetime. That’s enough to provide plenty of protein and calcium for children.

Dairy cow

Chickens and eggs! Sometimes miracles come with feathers. Chickens are a beautiful gift of nutritious food for a hungry family. Fresh eggs mean protein and other essential nutrients, and the sale of extra eggs provides money for clothes, medicine, and other needs. Chickens are easy to breed—so your gift can grow and multiply to share with neighbors and ultimately make a better life for the whole village.

Chickens

Sheep + goat

We’ve paired these most popular animals so you can give 2 or more struggling families a gift they’ll never forget. With a pair of chickens and a goat, you’ll provide a steady supply of eggs, milk, and meat to feed children and save families. It’s the best $100 you’ll ever spend.

How ducks are keeping families afloat:

Thousands of families in countries like Bangladesh lost their food and livelihood when torrential rains killed their chickens. That's why World Vision is helping them switch to duck farming. After all, a flood that could be deadly for a chicken is just an adventure for a duck.

How your gifts of animals do more good than you can even imagine:

When you give any animal through World Vision, a family will get much more than just the animal. Here's how:

Animals are distributed to families and community groups, along with feed and vaccines. Because livestock produce offspring, they give a family the power to pass on their blessings and help transform their entire community.

Families are trained in animal care and agriculture, so their children have healthy, balanced diets. Soon, families have extra animals, eggs, or dairy products to sell so they have money for school, healthcare, and clothing.

28 farm animals can save 10 families from hunger

With this truly life-changing gift, you'll provide ample protein and vital nutrition—including milk, eggs, meat, and more—for years to come. As the animals multiply, families can sell surplus food for extra income. A bountiful and enduring blessing!

A hardworking donkey gets the goods to market
A donkey is a wonderful gift for a struggling family. They can help transport produce, firewood, or other goods to sell at market—or can carry a sick child to a distant clinic. They’re reliable and hardworking animals that can live for 30 years or more—hauling a family to self-sufficiency and a better life.

Lifesaving mosquito nets protect children from malaria

The world’s deadliest creature, the mosquito, kills nearly 655,000 people every year. While preventing this malaria infection is inexpensive by U.S. standards, it’s out of reach for poor African families who must watch helplessly as their children suffer and die. Your gift will provide one of the best ways to protect children from malaria — bed nets—as well as critical education for prevention and control.

“…bring water for the thirsty…” ~ Isaiah 21:14

World Vision pools donations to provide wells in as many communities as possible. Wells are not matched to individual donors. As progress updates come in, a report will be available describing how gifts are helping to provide clean water in impoverished communities.

“…we decided to start a new family tradition—to buy birthday presents for Jesus on Christmas Eve, from the World Vision Gift Catalog. Three-year-old Daniel quickly settled on ‘water for Baby Jesus’—the deep well really caught his attention. (We can’t quite afford the whole thing, but at least a share.) Have a wonderful Christmas!”

— The Spade Family, Illinois

“Before, we used to draw water at a stream 500 meters from the village. That water was not clean, but this water is clean. There were a lot of diarrhea cases before. Now, not so many. We are very grateful for the well!”

— Elina at age 14, Zambia

Give a water well and save children’s lives

Pray. That’s the first thing our well-drilling teams do when they come to a thirsty community. They take their work seriously, because they know that dirty water and poor sanitation are major contributors to the deaths of about 1.5 million children every year.

Help one of our teams drill a well and fit it with a hand pump. One well can provide 2,800 gallons of safe, life-sustaining water every day for up to 300 people. Your gift will save lives for years to come, and help transform an entire community.
